Amid Coronavirus Scare, Sadhguru Brings Focus to Daily Wage Earners

“Provide Nourishment To Daily Wage Earners”: Sadhguru’s Advice Amid Coronavirus Outbreak

19 March 2020, Coimbatore: At a time when Coronavirus outbreak has impacted economies around the globe and mega industries like aviation, travel and hospitality suffer financially, Sadhguru, the founder of Isha Foundation, has brought the focus back to one of the most important, yet ignored sections - the daily wage earners.

Sadhguru took to twitter to appeal to communities to support daily wage earners to tide over the crisis. He said lack of employment will lead to starvation for those who depend on daily earnings to support themselves and their families. Appealing to the communities to provide “at least daily nourishment” to such people, he said that hunger and starvation has the potential to cause a civil unrest.

“Of the many concerns of Coronavirus, livelihood deprivation of daily wage earners is a serious one. Starvation can ignite civil unrest and deaths. Providing at least daily nourishment to them is the responsibility of the community. Let's stand together and beat the virus,” Sadhguru said in tweet.

Recently, Isha Foundation issued health and travel advisories based on government communication to those visiting the Isha Yoga Center in Coimbatore. Sadhguru has postponed his own engagements in Mumbai and Africa which were to take place at the end of March and beginning of April respectively.

The Coronavirus outbreak has been declared a pandemic by World Health Organisation. Its epicentre, Wuhan in China, was one of the first cities to be locked down. The virus has spread to Europe, America and parts of Asia. India has reported 172 infected cases with 3 deaths so far.
