6 February 2020, Coimbatore: The Thondamuthur Police Station in the suburb of Coimbatore city has been awarded the ISO 9001: 2015 certification for meeting quality and compliance standards of the International Standardization for Organizations (ISO). Sadhguru, Founder, Isha Foundation, congratulated the team on its achievement.

In a letter addressed to Shri. Manivannan, Inspector of Thondamuthur Police Station, Sadhguru wrote, "My warm congratulations to you and your team on being certified 9001: 2015. It is heartening to note that a Police Station in our neighborhood has taken care of its ambience as well as the quality and efficiency of the management and services it provides.

An efficient well managed team, maintaining a low crime rate in the area, ensuring a green and pleasant atmosphere at the station for officials and citizens- these are indeed the makings of an ideal police station. This, in many ways, reflects the culture and natural consciousness of the people of this region."

ISO 9001 defines the international standard for quality management systems. The standards are defined to improve product and service delivery and improve organizational efficiency.
